The US Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has selected the Chula Vista Redevelopment Agency to receive two grants to study and plan for the cleanup of unsafe, contaminated properties in Southwest Chula Vista. "Brownfields" properties pose a serious risk to the health and safety of residents and business owners, especially children and elderly. "Brownfields" sites can include vacant properties where children often play or walk across on their way to school. The dirt on these properties can contain unsafe contaminants that put our children at risk. Through the EPA Brownfields Grants, the Chula Vista Redevelopment Agency hopes to work with Southwest Chula Vista's residents and local businesses to identify high-risk sites for assessment and cleanup.
